ARRIVAL OF THE TORPEDO BOAT

DESTROYERS. H.M.S. Porpoise, with the two torpedo boat destroyers, arrived in the harbour this morning. The Porpoise met the destroyers at Colombo, and convoyed them sic Singapore and Saigon to Hongkong. On the 11th December the convoy left Singapore in fine weather, with which they were favoured until the evening of the following day, when they experienced a heavy monsoon, and on the Sunday shelter was sought at Poulo Condors. Only a short stay was made, however, a start being again made in the evening, and at eight o'clock on 14th December Cape St. James was reached. They proceeded to Salgon, where they received a hospitable reception. Salutes were exchanged and the officers of the British vessels were afterwards lavishly entertained. The Governor, General and Commodore paid official visits, and Admiral de Beaumont paid an unofficial visit, his flag-ship the Bayard being in dock. Last Friday, the Porpoise and the destroyers left Saigen, and anchored at mid-day at Cape St James for the night, in hopes of receiving their mails from the French mail steamer Sydney, but on the arrival of the steamer they were disappointed to find that their mail had been made up in the Hongkong bag- At daylight on Saturday morning, therefore a start was made on the last stage of the journey, the first fortyeight hours of which was made in splendid weather. After this, they steamed against a light monsoon, which, about mid-day on Tuesday freshened, and gradually increased in strength to a moderate gale, which lasted until off the coast of St. John's Island. Last night, at nine o'clock, they weighed anchor off Lamma Island, and this morning they reached their destination. The torpedo boat destroyers, as was to be expected considering the speed at which they travelled, were sometimes lost to view in the heavy seas which were encountered, but under these conditions behaved splendidly, and they have shown themselves to be admirably suited for the work required of them. The Hart is in command of Lieutenant Shakespear, and Lieutenant Gillespie commands the Handy. The Hart and Handy are similar in build, being 200 feet long with a beam of 19 for second-class players, at the Hongkong feet 41 inches. On a mean draft of 7 feet (6 feet 2 inches forward, and 7 feet 2 inches aft) they can steam at 28.2 knots an hour. The engines are of the triple expansion type, and steam is supplied by three Thornycroft water-tube boilers. Outside. the vessels' plating is faced with hardened steel k inch thick, which, to some extent, forms a protection against small arm fire. The decks of the destroyers, which are sure has spread Eastward to Japan, where of steel, are covered with a preparation resembling linoleum, which gives the crew a foothold, for it can readily be imagined that a boat travelling over thirty miles an hour in a lumpy sea, is not particularly dry on deck. The armament of the destroyers consists of five 6-pounder and one 12pounder quick firing guns. The latter is mounted forward. A notable feature about it is a new and improved breech mechanism. which by one motion opens and puts the breach block back into place. The weapon has a wide arc of fire, and it can be trained with great accuracy. In addition to the above the Hart and Handy have each two torpedo tubes worked from the deck and each carries four torpedoes. Amidships a powerful search light is placed. The ships' companies each consist of 52 hands all told -48 men and 4 officers. The ward room is very cosy, and considering the size of the vessel-very comfortable. The destroyers were convoyed to Malta by H.M.S.

The great degree of attention that has been bestowed of late years upon the investigation of Chinese literature. antiquities, and social developments, to sav nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of information, rendering some such channel of publicity as is now provided extremely desirable: and contributions of much interest may fairly be looked or from the members of the foreign consular services, the Chinese Customs' corps, and the missionary body, among whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is now assiduously cultivated, and who are severally represented in the first walls, and a camp bed standing on a mud number of the Review by papers highly creditable to their respective authors . Beside notices of new books relating to Ohina and the Rast, which will be a useful feature of the Review, if carried out with punctuality and detail, we are glad to notice that "Notes" and "Queries" are destined to find a place in its pages also. HOW ARCHIBALD FORBES WON THE ORDER OF ST. STANIS: LAUS.*

The Russo-Turkish campaign had been in progress for several months before I had the honour of being presented to the Em-peror Alexander II. That fell out in this wise. The Imperial headquarters were in the Bulgarian village of Gorni Studen when the fighting began in the Schipka Pass up in the Balkans. General Ignation gave me a timely hint, and I started immediately for the scene of action. As we rode along through the beautiful valleys that trend up into the Balkans, we met the hordes of wretched Bulgarian fugitives who had fled across the mountain chain from the fell retribution of the Turks. The whole country seemed one great picnic; but it was an in-describably mournful picnic. My artistcompanion revelled in the picturesqueness of the vivid colours of the women's dresses; but he had no heart to defact the birouses in their profound misery.

We reached the fire-swept pass of the Schipka on the afternoon of August 23, just as the Russian fortunes were trem-bling in the balance. There had been almost continuous fighting over since the morning of the 21st. . . . The two Russian commanders stood on the parapet of the St. Nicholas redoubt, on the loftiest and most exposed peak of the position. Their glasses were scanning the visible glimpses of the steep brown road leading up from out the lantra Valley, through stunted copses of sombre green and yet more sombre dark rock. Stolistoff crie floud in a sudden access of excitement grips his brother commander hard by the arm, and points down the pass. The head The Notes and Queries are still continued of a long black column is plainly visible against the reddish-brown bed of the road. 'Now God be thanked!' exclaims Darozinski solemnly. He was a dead man thirty hours later. Both commanders crossed themselves with bared heads. The troops spring to their feet; they descry the long back serpent coiling up the tortuous brown road. Through the green couses a glint of sunshine flashes, banishes the sombreness, and dances on the glittering bayonets. Such a gust of Russian cheers tops, that the Turkish war-cries were drowned in the welcome which the Russian soldiers sent to their comrades hurrying to help them. As the head of the column came nearer, it was discerned that it consisted of mounted men. Had Radetsky then, men asked one another, sent cavalry to cope with infantry among the precipices of the Balkans? The column halted. and from its bosom a mountain battery came into action against the Turkish position on one of the ridges. The riders dismounted. formed up, and then marched swiftly until within easy range of the Turks, when they broke and scattered, and straightway from behind every stone and bush spurted white jets of powder-smoke. The column was a hattalion of a crack rifle brigade, and the brigade was not three kilometres behind. Radetzky, down in the valley, had dismounted a Cossack regiment, and taken over its ponies for behoof of the leading rifle battalion, at whose head he himsel had pushed on.

It was a very bloody day, and on that exposed backbone of bare rock, commanded on either side by the Turkish fire, no man's life was worth five minutes' purchase. was burning to get to the telegraph wirethe more eager because it seemed to me that during the day the Russians had so prospered that, although the struggle was sure to last for some time, they would be able at least to hold the their own. asked the general what was his estimate of the situation. Radetzky was oracular. But, he added grimly, of observations made at the Imperial Rus. I am a tough man, and, with God's help, come Turk, come devil, I shall here till I am killed or ordered away That pronouncement was good enough for mo. It was already full dark when, haying bidden farewell to the friendly general and to my comrade Villiers, who had deteroff on the journey to Bucharest, where the nearest telegraph office was, a distance of about a hundred and seventy miles. All night long I rode hard, having posted relays of horses, and on the morning of the 25th, having neither eaten, drunk, nor rested since the morning of the previous day, I rode into the Imperial headquarters in Gorni Studen. The first man I met was General Ignatieff, who called out- Where from now? 'From the Schipka,' was my reply. - I left there late tell it him!

Now I had not been exactly brought up among amperors; but I have at least some sense of propriety, and I knew that a man ought to wait on an emperor in his Sunday clothes. I hadn't seen any Sunday clothes, or Sundays either, for three months; and I was conscious that my aspect was eminently disreputable. I had been wearing clothes originally white for over a fortnight night and day. The black of my saddle had come off on to them with great liberality; and Trubner's Oriental Record contains the they were spotted with the blood of poor General Dragomiroff, whom, when wounded. I had helped to carry into a place o comparative safety. I had not washed for three days, and altogether felt a humiliatingly dilapidated representative of that great empire on which the sun never sets. But Ignatieff insisted that in the circumstances the Emperor would by no means stand on coremony. He went inside and awakened his Imperial Majesty, who had been asleep; and he presently ushered me Turl sh house, the balcony of which, where the Emperer stood, was enclosed with common canvas curtains. There was not even a carpet on the rugged boards. A glimpse into the bedroom whence his Majesty had emerged showed a tlny cabin with mud floor. The Emperor received me with great kindness, shaking hands, and paying a compliment to my hard riding. He was gaunt, afflicted him. I ventured to suggest that I could make him understand the episodes of the fighting much better if I had a sheet of paper on which to draw a plan. The Emperor said at once: Ignatioff, go and fetch paper and pencil, Ignatioff went; and his Majesty and myself were alone together, standing opposite each other,

ATTEMPT TO POISON A SHIP'S OFFICERS. Shanghai, 17th December. A diabolical case of attempted poisoning was brought before the Mixed Court this morning, when a Chinese cook on the barque Umega was arraigned for attempting to poison the master, mate, two European passengers, and the Chinese carpenter on board that vessel. From the statements made by Captain Svensen, master of the barque, it would appear that the Omega was at Newchwang in July last when the offence was committed, and she was engaged in the lighthouse transport service. having on board, two lightkeepers, Messrs Drewett and Fisher, who were being transferred from one station to another. REMARKS.

Unsurpassed as a tonic for the ladies. Once tried by them they will agree with the remarks of our other lady friends and continue to patronize us. For the gentlemen it is a cooling and refreshing drink. All who have tried it stand by it. We only ask one trial and will then rest on our merits.

THE CHINESE MAIL 報日字華 (Wah Tex Yat Po)

THIS paper is now issued every day.

The subscription is fixed at Five Dollars per annum delivered in Hongkong, or Eleven Dollars Forty Cents including postage to Coast ports. It is the first Chinese Newspaper ever issued under purely native direction. The chief support of the paper is of course derived from the native community, amongst whom also are to be found the guarantors and securities necessary to place it on a business and legal footing. The projectors, basing their estimates The Great Salt Wells. apon the most reliable information from North Kwei Chou. the various Ports in China and Japan, - The Wilds of Hu-per. from Australia, California, Singapore, Pe- Sz Ch'uan Plante, nang, Saigon, and other places frequented be the Chinese, -consider themselves justified in guaranteeing a large and ever-increasing circulation. The saventages offered to advortisers are therefore unusually great, and the foreign community generally will find it to their interest to avail themselves of

The field open to a paper of this descrip-tion—conducted by native efforts, but progressive and anti-obstructive in toneis almost limitless. It on the one hand commands Chinese ballet and interest, while on the other it deserves every aid that can be given to it by foreigners. Idke English journals it contains Editorials, with Local, Shipping, and Commercial News and Advertisements. Subscription orders for the above may be Hour . . . 0.60 | Six hours . . 1.50
